

Dementia is a decline in intellectual ability severe enough to interfere with a person's activities of daily life. Dementia related to health conditions may be reversible if detected early. There are also disease related causes for dementia, the most common is Alzheimer's disease.

It is important to identify the actual cause of dementia to provide the most appropriate care. The diagnostic process often begins with the physician. A Diagnostic Clinic referral may include, reviewing detailed history, a complete physical and neurological exam, psychiatric assessment and laboratory tests.
